FRIDAY, APRIL 26, 1912.

The Western Union has ordered 10,000 new typewriters, which is but a beginning, and it is expected that within a year all telegrams, including the day and night letters, will be typewritten. Does this mean, it may be wondered, the gradual extinction of that peculiar current writing, rapid, open, free and intricately looped, which is known as "telegraph hand?" It is admirable for its purpose but it is the reverse of what is needed for those uses for which chirography is still retained. Librarians, for example, also have a special hand, but it is compact, formal and print-like, and rapidity is less important than legibility. The mertraditions. Literary people, on the other hand, when they happen not to typewrite, follow any model they like, but they seldom employ the easy, rapid gallop or lope of the telegrapher's hand. That is best suited to one who is writing from dictation, and who keeps up a steady pace after once getting up motion.

KILL THE FLY.

As the warm weather approaches, that pest of pests, the house fly, becomes not only a nuisance but the source of disease germs of many kinds and also the primary cause of many fevers that are deadly during

In the interest of health it therefore becomes necessary to devise means whereby this menace to the health and even life of mankind may be eliminated. Vigorous campaigns have been begun all over the country against the pest among the medical and newspaper professions. The Citizen will inaugurate such a campaign in Honesdale and endeavors to rid the borough of as many of these pests as possible. In the first place attention should be given to your screens and see that they are hung right, then swat all flies that come in through cracks and otherwise. The greatest safeguarding of health in general lies in preventing the pests from breeding. When it is realized that the descendants of a single fly number more than a million during a season it can be readily seen that a systematic effort to exterminate them and keep them from hatching can accomplish a good deal. In another part of today's paper the plan of campaign is more clearly outlined. Begin now, and swat the fly.

CLEAN-UP WEEK.

It has been said that modern science and luxury has done away with the terrors of the annual house-cleaning. Those who have rugs and hardwood floors and a corps of servants are supposed to be so clean at all times that there is no necessity for beating all the carpets at once, washing all the woodwork on a given day, polishing all the windows simultaneing all the woodwork on a given day, polishing all the windows simultaneously, fitting out the whole family with dust caps and worried expressions and turning things generally topsy turvy.

While this may be true in some few instances, there are enough homes left without rugs and hardwood floors and, what is more important, without the requisite number of servants to keep them in apple pie order, to insure the permanency of the spring housecleaning as an American institution.

And no matter how neat we may become as a town, there will always be sections worthy of the steel of the crusaders of "Clean-up Week."

The local Improvement Association has decided upon the week of May 6 as being the best time to clean up. Honesdale has always responded nobly to these calls to arms against the common enemy-dirt.

Inasmuch as each individual soldier in the battle must necessarily act for himself to a large extent, defending his own castle in his own way, it would not be amiss for the army to be casting its eyes over the situation and mapping out a plan of action.

Clean-up week should make the county seat a real spotless town and Beach Grove for the past five years, base ball team. the impetus gained during clean-up week should keep us clean for the is now working for H. ### THE TRIUMPH OF TAFT.

Interesting pages of political history are being written these days, day last, The pre-eminent issue of the presidential campaign of 1912 has been focused, which has brought forth William Howard Taft as the man of the hour, moving surely and firmly in meeting an issue of more crucial moment to the government than that which characterized the sound money cam- home. paign of 1896. The line of clevage lies between sound constitutional government that has stood the test of time, and "sixteen-to-one" judicial recall. The campaign of 1896 brought forth Marcus A. Hanna as a leader who, in the teeth of what at first seemed to be a sweeping gale, firmly stood his ground and conducted one of the greatest educative campaigns in our history for sound money, believing that the same rational commonsense of the people would prevail against the whirlwind of the silver agitation, that had always appeared when a crisis threatened the integrity of American institutions.

With all the strength within him, without equivocation, William H. Taft has taken up the gauntlet for sound constitutional government. His reply to the challenge of his predecessor has defined an unmistakable issue of the campaign. President Taft insists that to destroy the independence of the judiciary is to take away the keystone from the arch of free government. He has further insisted that irresponsible assaults upon the judiciary are a serious menace to enduring government, that they launch a rudderless ship of state on a sea of troubles. To deny that the people have ruled, he insists, is a reflection on our form of government. the pole star of which always has been, and always will be, the will of the people.

WE ARE ALL REPUBLICANS.

Much effort is being put forth by persons and journals not identified with the Republican party to make it appear that the differences between what are known as the progressive and conservative elements in the party are irreconcilable, and that the party itself is likely to founder on the rocks of dissension. This is very far from the truth. No vital principle of the Republican party is at stake, no vital question is at issue in the controversy that has arisen concerning the presidential nomination. It is simply that there is a difference of opinion among Republicans as to a choice of leader for the coming campaign. This is not unusual. Quite the contrary. The battle for the nomination is always fought out prior to the national convention. But when the convention has made and recorded its choice, and adopted its platform, the Republican hosts are found marching together and fighting together for victory over the common enemy. The new doctrines put forth by Col. Roosevelt in his campaign for the nomination, doctrines about which all Republicans do not agree, are not doctrines with which a national administration has to do, but relate very largely to the government of the several states. For the most part the declarations of Col. Roosevelt concerning policies with which as president he would have to deal are such as would be heartly confirmed by all Republicans. The same is true of the declarations made by President Taft. There is no material difference of opinion among Republicans concerning the policies which have been pursued by the party in the past, which govern it in the present, or which should control it in the week.

ZEMO and ZEMO SOAP can be obfuture. It is therefore not possible to disrupt the party over the mere question of leadership. Political parties have often been split asunder by dissensions over party policies, but rarely if ever over differences of Hartford, Conn.

opinion in the choice of leaders. Republican voters will follow no one commodate Milanville and Narrows- school at Nobodies Tuesday of this out of the party, nor will they permit that party strength to be dissipated burg patrons. by internal discord. When the contest opens with their hereditary foe, they will be found acting in perfect unison.

Wayne county Republicans in particular should not permit themselves to be deceived by the false assumption on the part of those who are unfriendly to us, that the party in this county or in the state or nation is hopelessly divided. We are not divided. The difference of opinion H. C. VAN ALSTYNE and E. B. CALLAWAY .... MANAGING EDITORS among us as to a national leader is of necessity only a temporary difference. With the passing of the national convention it will necessarily disappear. For Wayne county the contest is already over. Whatever difference arose in the fight for control of the primaries may well be forgotten. We are all Republicans. We have a common purpose, and a common end in view. Let us work together in harmony and hopefulness for a common

FRESH AIR-ITS IMPORTANCE TO HEALTH.

The cheapest and most accessible preventive and curative agent in the whole realm of medicine is fresh air.

Air is an esential of human life. Entering the body by way of the nose and throat it penetrates the smaller divisions of the lungs, absorbing the impurities of the blood and changing it to a bright red, healthful and invigorating fluid. The purer and fresher the air, the better will it perform this function.

The expelled air is loaded with waste products of the body and frequently contains disease germs. One can readily understand why the same air should not be breathed over and over again. While you remain in a poorly ventilated room you are performing this injurious act.

During the summer open windows and out door life insure sufficient fresh air. In winter it requires more effort to get the best air. That is possibly the reason why colds, catarrhs, grip, tonsilitis and pneumonia, all diseases of the air passages, are more prevalent in cold weather.

Sleep only in rooms which are well ventilated. Have the windows open at top and bottom, but avoid a draught. If this is uncomfortable because of the cold use more bed clothing. Make it a rule to spend an hour or more each day out of doors, walking and practicing deep breathcantile hand, nowadays at least, is much less uniform, but it has its own ing. Avoid hot, stuffy, over-crowded, poorly ventilated rooms. If you are susceptible to colds these precautions will increase your resistance; if you feel that you are perfectly healthy, it will safeguard your health. A body invigorated by this practice is less likely to contract infectious diseases such as typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever and consumption, and when such a person becomes ill, the chances of recovery are much greater than in an individual who has lived and slept in close rooms and avoided out door exercise because of cold weather.

Consumption, which causes more deaths than any other disease, finds its greatest enemy in fresh air.
